

THE TARIFF VOTE
COMES AT 6 O'CLOCKWILSON BILL DEBATE ENDS
AMID TUMULT.

Chairman Taken on the Shoulders of His Colleagues and Carried About the Floor of the House in Triumph—All the Barley Amendments Defeated.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—Fillibustering was again successful, and the barley amendments in which Wisconsin is so interested, are all lost. The tariff debate closed in a blaze of glory, Speaker Crisp and ex-Speaker Reed being the bright particular stars. The galleries of the house have been crowded to suffocation all day. There has been great excitement, and the city police are on duty to prevent a panic.

At the conclusion of his speech on the barley schedule Chairman Wilson was carried about the house in triumph. The vote on the barley schedule began at 3:30 but the vote on the complete measure will not come before six o'clock.

The final vote will be taken on the bill as a whole by yeas and nays. The precise order of the proceedings is subject to incidental changes by agreement between the leaders of the two sides. There is no doubt felt here that the internal revenue bill will be attached to the tariff bill, or that the latter will go through the house with a good sized majority. Whatever carving or other altering is to be done will have to be done in the senate.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—Secretary Carlisle will make his bond allotments to-day. Until noon bids will be received. He has opened all that have been received and they aggregate nearly $50,000,000. It is thought that many big bankers who have been holding back to the last to take advantage of any change in the financial situation will send in large bids. The secretary is disappointed with the showing thus far made. He expected that bids aggregating $150,000,000 would be received before this time. Secretary Carlisle has no doubt, however, of his ability to place the entire $50,000,000 at something over the required premium.

CLOSING GENERAL DEBATE.

House Putting the Finishing Touches on the Tariff Discussion.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—The last day of general debate on the tariff bill opened with a fair attendance in the galleries and a rather slim attendance on the floor. After the committees had been called for reports the house went into committee of the whole to consider the tariff bill.

Mr. McMillan (dem.), of Tennessee, asked unanimous consent that the vote of the pending amendments and on all other amendments which may be offered be taken at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, but Mr. Burrows (rep.), of Michigan, objected to debate being thus limited.

The first amendment offered was one by Mr. Tate of Georgia, to strike out sections 29, 30 and 31 relating to the tax on whisky, the increase of the bonded period and the manner of collecting the tax. He was opposed to the increase of the tax on whisky.

Mr. Outhwaite offered an amendment to the amendment to increase the tax on whisky from 90 cents to $1 when in bond one year, $1.10 for two years and $1.30 for three years, the bonded period to cease at the end of that time. The Outhwaite substitute was lost.

The amendment proposed by Mr. Dingley was then voted on and was carried—81 yeas and 75 nays. Tellers were asked for, and on this vote the amendment was again carried, 105 in the affirmative and 80 in the negative. This is the first and only amendment which the republicans have succeeded in incorporating in the bill.

An amendment was offered by Mr. Enloe (dem., Tenn.), which was adopted, extending the operations of the law to the distilled spirits in bond at the time the law should go into effect.

Mr. Walker (rep., Mass.) offered an amendment increasing the tax from $1 to $1.50 per gallon. Lost. Mr. Tate's amendment was also lost—yeas, 20; nays, 47. Mr. Gear (rep., Ia.) offered an amendment, which was not adopted, which in substance doubles the tax on liquor dealers.

Mr. Tucker (dem., Va.) offered an amendment to the income tax section of the bill, excluding from its operation charitable institutions and corporations and organizations doing business in the states not for profit. Agreed to.

Mr. Whiting (dem., Mich.) offered an amendment to the wine schedule of the tariff bill proper, fixing the duty on still wines at 30 cents per gallon when below 14 per cent alcohol and at 50 cents when above. Agreed to.

Mr. Bynum (dem., Ind.) offered a committee amendment deducting from the calculated income of farmers and stock raisers the "amount expended in the purchase of production of such produce or production," which was agreed to.

Mr. Springer (dem., Ill.) offered an amendment providing that inheritance of property should be subjected to the provisions of the income tax. Mr. Bynum (dem., Ind.) offered an amendment to this amendment, including in the enumeration of incomes everything received by gift, devise or inheritance. Both amendments were adopted.

Mr. Maguire (dem., Cal.) offered an amendment of a very radical nature, striking out all the provisions of the bill relating to taxes on incomes, and in lieu thereof provided for a direct tax of $31,311,125 by apportionment among the states and also for a direct tax on land values.

The amendment was lost, the following being the only members who voted for it: Johnson (dem., Ohio), Maguire (dem., Cal.), Warner (dem., N. Y.), Simpson (pop., Kan.) and Harter (dem., Ohio).

The internal revenue bill was then agreed to as an amendment to the tariff bill by a vote of 175 to 56. Great cheering and applause greeted the result.

Mr. Wilson (dem., W. Va.) then offered an amendment to increase the tariff on barley from 20 per cent to 25 per cent and on barley malt from 30 per cent to 35 per cent. Mr. Tracey (dem., N. Y.) offered an amendment to this amendment, increasing the rate on barley from 25 to 35 per cent.

To this Mr. Payne (rep., N. Y.) offered a substitute providing for a duty of 20 cents a bushel on barley instead of 20 per cent ad valorem, and on barley malt from 30 per cent ad valorem to 30 cents a bushel. Mr. Wilson finally moved that the debate be closed and a vote was taken on the last motion, but the hour of 5:30 arrived before a quorum had voted, the house went into recess and the barley schedule again went over.

The last of the night sessions on the tariff bill opened with full galleries and a fair attendance of members. The list of speakers included Representatives Baker, Kem, Cooper, Russell, Paschal, Houk, Harris, Stallings, Hooker, Cummings, Blanchard, McCleary, and Bingham. Mr. Cummings delivered an earnest protest against the high handed methods which he said had been adopted by the ways and means committees in choking off amendments. He protested strongly against the bill in the name of the trade unions of New York city. Mr. Cummings was warmly applauded for his strong stand in favor of the laboring class.

HAWAIIAN CORRESPONDENCE.

Dole's Reply to Willis May Be Sent to the House Friday.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—The President, it is understood, will not send to congress the latest batch of Hawaiian correspondence, which includes President Dole's reply to Minister Willis, until Friday. The probability is that the senate will not be in session on that day, and so it will happen again, as in the case of the last two installments of Hawaiian information, that the message will go to the house alone.

President Dole's reply has been in the possession of the state department since Saturday. Those who have been permitted to glance over it say that it is an exceedingly vigorous and pointed document about 10,000 words in length. The tone of the reply is said to be dignified, but firm and very pungent.

Sibley Decides to Stick.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—A letter has been sent to Gov. Pattison withdrawing the resignation of Representative J. C. Sibley, of the Erie (Pa.) district. This step was taken in deference to the wishes of his constituents and after a consultation with political friends from that state. Representative Beltzhoover of Pennsylvania emphatically denies the report put in circulation that he intended to resign his seat in congress because of his attitude in regard to the tariff bill, especially in connection with the metal schedule.

Validity of Bonds Discussed.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—The resolution offered by Mr. Stewart (rep., Nev.) denying the legal authority of the secretary of the treasury to issue bonds occupied the attention of the senate yesterday. The discussion was conducted on strict party lines and was chiefly legal in its form. The bond resolution finally went over without action, and, after a short executive session, the senate adjourned.

Broken Rail Wrecks an Alabama Train—Several Passengers Hurt.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Feb. 1.—A broken rail near Clio, Ala., on the Central Georgia railroad, wrecked a passenger train last night. Koeber, express messenger, had his leg severely mashed. James McIntyre, of Dadeville, Ala., was hurt in the back and several others slightly injured.

Pope's Interest in America.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 1.—Cardinal Gibbons has sent to the pope at Rome portraits of President Cleveland and ex-President Harrison. The cardinal said: "The holy father expressed a desire for the portraits and I got two very good ones. His desire for them shows the interest he takes in America and Americans."

WHY MR. GLADSTONE
TALKS OF QUITTING.RUMORS OF HIS RETIREMENT
WELL FOUNDED.

It Was the Pall Mall Gazette that Made the First Announcement—Letter From the Grand Old Man's Companion Confirms While Apparently Denying.

LONDON, Feb. 1.—The Pall Mall Gazette declares that it learns from a source in which it has every confidence that Mr. Gladstone has finally decided to resign his office almost immediately.

According to the Pall Mall Gazette, Mr. Gladstone will announce his decision in a letter to the queen before the reassembling of parliament. This decision is said to be due to a sense of his advanced age and the great strain the late arduous session imposed upon him. Finally, it is said, Mr. Gladstone is deeply disappointed at the rejection of the home rule bill. The Pall Mall Gazette adds that it is understood that domestic pressure has considerably influenced Mr. Gladstone in this decision.

It was 10:30 o'clock in the evening before an official statement reached London from Biarritz. It was from Sir Algernon West, the companion of the Grand Old Man, and was issued as follows:

"The statement that Mr. Gladstone has definitely decided, or decided at all, to resign is untrue. It is true, however, that for many months past his age and the condition of his sight and hearing have, in his judgment, made relief from public affairs desirable. Therefore his tenure of office has been at any moment liable to interception from these causes, which are in their nature prominent."

"It remains exactly as it has been. He is ignorant of the course which events important to the nation may take even during the remainder of the present session of parliament, and he has not said nor done anything which in any degree restrains his absolute freedom or that of his colleagues regarding the performance of the arduous duties now lying or likely to lie before them."

When this was posted on the bulletin boards of the clubs it was read with amazement. It was regarded as a denial which amounted to confirmation. The intimations which were conveyed between the lines were considered even more startling in import than the fact that Mr. Gladstone might soon retire. It is not too much to say that Sir Algernon West's message, with its vague but portentous significance, will alarm Europe as nothing else has done since the declaration of war in 1870.

Before the message was received politicians of both parties eagerly discussed possible reasons for Mr. Gladstone's retirement. Why should he suddenly withdraw? The first and most obvious answer which was suggested was that he sees burdens and responsibilities ahead far greater than he can assume. In other words, the Daily Telegraph was right when it declared three weeks ago that the authorities had been warned through the most trustworthy sources of information that war might be thrust upon England at any moment. Even Gladstone's friends would be unanimous that the Grand Old Man is unfit to undertake the fearful ordeal of a war administration.

The excitement in political circles is greater than in years. The sudden anxiety is akin to a panic in some of its expressions. All discussion centers on the interpretation of West's dispatch. Does it mean war? That is the question which everybody is considering, but which in the absence of light nobody can answer.

Sues for Heavy Bank Loans.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Feb. 1.—In the United States District court David Armstrong, receiver of the Fidelity National bank, entered suit against John S. Conner, assignee of the Riverside Iron and Steel company, for a balance of $60,375 due the bank on loans made a short time before the failure.

STUDENTS KILLED
WHILE SLEIGHING.MERRY PARTY AT FALL RIVER
MEETS DISASTER.

Struck By a Railroad Train at a Crossing and Three Were Killed—Decatur, Ill., Young Woman Accidentally Shoots Her Prospective Husband—Boy Robbers Confess.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Feb. 1.—Yesterday afternoon a sleighing party, made up of twenty-eight members of the sophomore class of the B. M. C. Durfee High School, was returning from a two hours' sleigh ride, and within half a mile from home, when the sleigh was struck by a train from Boston at the Brownell street crossing of the Old Colony railroad. Everett B. Durfee, a teacher in the school, and in charge of the party, was sitting on a camp stool in the end of the sleigh, and on either side of him were Brooks Borden, 16 years old, son of Col. Spencer Borden, and Ray Thornton, 17 years old, son of Charles D. Thornton, while Orson Swift, 17 years old, son of M. G. B. Swift, Esq., was sitting in the lap of Henry Hawkins. When the party saw the rushing train the members became terror stricken. Borden and Thornton jumped over the tailboard, only to be struck by the locomotive; Swift was preparing to jump when he, too, was struck. Borden was hurled forty feet, his skull and body being crushed, killing him instantly. Ray Thornton was dragged along in the wheels for 100 yards, his head and right arm being severed from his body. Swift was hurled twenty feet and was breathing but unconscious when picked up. He was taken home in an ambulance, but died shortly after he arrived there. Mr. Durfee and Clark Chase, Jr., jumped when they saw the train and escaped with slight bruises.

KILLED HER LOVER.

Fatal Accident Caused by a Joke Over a Game of Cards.

DECATUR, Ill., Feb. 1.—David Lambert and his promised bride, Miss Maggie Truelock, were playing cards last night at the home of James A. Pasley. Lambert placed his revolver on the table and said in a joke, "The first one that makes a kick will be shot." He thought he had removed all of the cartridges. Lambert made the first objection to a play made and Miss Truelock picked up the revolver, saying in a joking way, "Dave, you know what you said about quarreling," and the pistol, which was a hammerless one, was discharged, the bullet lodging in Lambert's head, causing almost instant death. There were four witnesses of the accident. The coroner's jury returned a verdict of accidental death.

Boys Confess to Several Robberies.

LANCASTER, Wis., Feb. 1.—John H. Smith and Otto Fehling, who have been considered exemplary boys, have confessed to several robberies that have recently mystified the police. One of their admissions was that they had planned to come in early some morning, just after the banks were opened, and rob one of the banks after the Jesse James fashion. Their education has been obtained by close application to Jesse James literature, though the families of both are strict church people.

FIVE MINERS BURNED.

Explosion of Firedamp with Serious but Not Fatal Effects.

FAYETTEVILLE, Pa., Feb. 1.—By an explosion of firedamp, which occurred in the Fayetteville Coal Mining Company's mine at 5:30 o'clock this morning, five miners were badly burned about the head, face and hands. The names of the men are: Thomas Taylor, Samuel White, C. C. Hamilton, Charles Mathews and Lewis Dewalt. While the injuries are serious they are not considered fatal. The explosion was caused by an open light coming in contact with a small body of gas, which had accumulated during the night.

ALIBI FOR COUGHLIN.

Witness Tells of the Prisoner's Movements the Night of May 4.

CHICAGO, Feb. 1.—Detective Michael Whalen was the first witness called by the defense in the Coughlin trial yesterday. He swore that he saw and talked with Coughlin on the night of the murder at a time when witnesses had said they saw him at the Carlson cottage. The witness is a member of the camp of the Clan-na-Gael to which Coughlin belongs, and this tends to weaken his testimony. Cross-examination failed to shake him in the least and the defense is jubilant.

Germany Follows America's Lead.

RIO JANEIRO, via Galveston, Texas, Feb. 1.—A launch loaded with coal, flying the German flag, was fired on by the Guanabara yesterday in the harbor. Capt. Hofmeyer of the German man-of-war Arcoana at once went aboard the rebel warship and told its commander that he was now receiving his last warning, and that if he fired again upon anything flying the German flag the German warships would sink his vessel. The rebel commander replied that he could only be sunk once, and that he would fight the thing out. There was no trouble, however.

Five Bullets Fly at the Preacher.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Feb. 1.—Henry Jones, a colored preacher living on Hebert street, was shot five times last night in a mysterious manner. He placed a large lump of coal on his grate and sat down before the fire. Soon five explosions occurred in the fireplace and five bullets struck the preacher. His parishioners ascribe the shooting to supernatural means, while the uncharitable intimate that the lump of coal was "loaded" in a coal pile not the preacher's. The man is not injured badly.

LED BY ANARCHISTS.

Sensational Discovery Made in Hunting for Riotous Strikers.

MANSFIELD, Pa., Feb. 1.—The authorities made ten arrests at Bower Hill yesterday, catching some of the worst anarchists in the neighborhood, and it is believed that among those in custody are the leaders in Saturday's riots. Pictures of the Chicago anarchists were found in most every house and in a "dugout leanto" in the rear of Benzel Bemish's home was located a secret meeting place for the anarchists. It was here that the riot was planned. A number of guns, revolvers and some ammunition were found in this cave-like room. Crouching in one corner the searching party found Charles Perliech, an anarchist, who readily confessed that he had attended the meeting of the mob's leaders Friday night and heard the plots. All the miners in the Mansfield valley are called upon to hold a meeting yesterday. Reports from the deputy sheriffs at the various coal mines indicate that at present no further trouble is feared. Twenty-five deputies were sent back to Pittsburgh and others will follow. A sufficient force will be retained to cope with any sudden outbreak.

SWEAR TOO FREELY DO THESE EXPERTS

ASHTON CASE SUGGESTS RE- FORM IN COURT METHODS

Special Witnesses Should be Called by the Presiding Judge and Should be Accountable to Him Alone—Should Not be Identified With Either Side.

"The amount of expert testimony you can get on either side depends solely on the depth of your pocket book," said Attorney E. M. Hyzer in his closing arguments in the Ashton murder case. "You can get experts to back any argument you make."

There was ample proof in the Ashton case that expert testimony is an uncertain quality. Many who watched that case will agree with a paper just read before the American Chemical Society. It dealt with the subject of expert testimony in cases of capital crime, where the chemist is called in to analyze parts of the human body, with a view to ascertain the presence of poisons in the vital organs. The paper was prepared by a man of experience in such matters, and after citing numerous instances in which he had been summoned himself to give testimony, he advanced the theory that the chemical or medical expert engaged in murder trials should be summoned by the court rather than the lawyers on either side in the case.

Expert is Supposed to be Partial.

The id-a now prevails among criminal lawyers that the expert belongs to the side which employs him, and that his testimony must fit into their theory of prosecution or defense. The paper, however, showed the folly of pursuing such a course in the matter of expert testimony, and the writer cited an instance in which the analysis of a man's stomach showed the presence of both zinc and arsenic. The zinc was undoubtedly injected into the body in the process of embalming, and the supposition was that the arsenic was taken before death and was the cause thereof. But the chemist was not allowed to mention the presence of zinc during the trial, and the favorable doubt which its presence in the analysis involved was not allowed to go to the credit of the prisoner. In other words, the witness was not permitted to state the truth and the whole truth.

Medical Testimony Confusing.

The most unsatisfactory results brought out in modern criminal trials center in expert testimony. Not only to learned chemists and physicians contradict each other, but their testimony serves to befog the jury and often leads to disagreement where no reasonable doubt would exist otherwise. The proposition that the expert in trials involving the death sentence should be summoned by the court and be answerable only to him, as the court stenographer is one which deserves thoughtful consideration. A reliable chemist, brought into a murder trial by the court for the express purpose of finding out the truth, whoever might be affected would serve to bring about a new state of affairs in ordinary criminal trials.

PUBLICATIONS FOR THE MONTH.

The Arena's Practical Charity.

The Arena has during the past few years raised several thousand dollars which has been distributed among the suffering poor. Last June the editor wrote a paper, entitled "Union for Practical Progress," which created general interest over the land. Recently The Arena has inaugurated a movement looking toward uniting the moral forces in every city, town and hamlet in a practical movement for justice and morality. The first paper along this line, written by Rev. Hiram Vrooman of Baltimore, appears in The Arena for February. It is a contribution which should be read by all persons interested in moral progress.

New York World's Year Book.

Among the annual almanacs which are put into print at this season of the year, the New York World Almanac must be rated as easily the first. The World's "arithmetical man" who figures up majorities the right after election, lays aside his political affiliations when he comes to work upon the almanac. Accuracy, fairness and completeness are the watchwords then, and the result is seen in the wide distribution of The World's Almanacs all over the United States and its use by Democrats, populists and republicans alike. The number for 1894, which has just come to us, has brought its election returns, statistics and general information up to date, and is the largest and most complete number ever issued. The price is only 35 cents a copy.

The New Tribune Almanac.

A large volume numbering over 360 pages, but sold at the same price as when, in the Forties, it printed only 50 pages, The New York Tribune Almanac for 1894 comes revised, rearranged, freshened up to date, and enriched by the addition of new features. The book contains an almost unlimited array of statistics on every subject which concerns the people of the United States, with much which interests only the political parties or other large bodies of men or women. ORPHAN GIRL'S SAD DEATH.

Taken Sick at Clinton—Death Finally Came to Her Release

CLINTON, Jan. 31.—Miss Libbie Olson who had been working for A. M. VanVelzer, was taken sick with sore throat but was doing nicely when she again caught cold and rapidly grew worse until Sabbath morning when she died. She was an orphan girl who came here from Rockford. Don't forget Covenant meeting at Congregational church Saturday afternoon. Maude Eaton is sick with scarlet fever. Arthur Milner also has it. Little Ruby Miller is much better. Both Mr. and Mrs. Charles Loomis are on the sick list. Mrs. Alexander Thom is very poorly. Be sure and take in the Sabbath afternoon Temperance meetings at Temple of Honor hall. The poverty social at Congregational church Thursday evening was a success.

The Week at Cooksville.

COOKSVILLE, Jan. 31.—To the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Gillis, there came on Saturday evening, Dec. 20, a ten pound boy. The mother is not doing as well as her friends would wish. Mr. Taylor, of Columbus, is visiting his sister, Mrs. Charles Miller. Mrs. Mayo visited Evansville and Janesville this week on business. Mrs. Opdale, state lecturer for the Equal Suffrage Association, gave a very fine lecture in the church last Thursday evening. Mrs. Minnie Savage drove over with her from Evansville, and they remained all night as the guests of Mrs. Hattie Porter. Charles Davis has rented his farm, and will move to Stoughton. It is said he will enter into the grocery business with C. Becker. Will Lunn is visiting Doc. and Fred Miller. He has been working in a stone quarry near Evansville. Chas. Davis had an auction sale to-day on his farm a mile south of the village. Doc. and Fred Miller had a runaway Sunday, but no damage was done. Mrs. Van Vleck and son Eugene are under the doctor's care, one with heart trouble and the other with asthma. Willie Davis is able to be up. A dance at D. M. Johnson's last Friday evening was greatly enjoyed by about fifty young people. The Whist club met last week with Mrs. Helen Richardson, and it was a jolly meeting. Mrs. Rosetta Johnson won first prize; Mrs. Belle Stebbins the "booby."

Gossip From South Turtle.

SOUTH TURTLE, Jan. 31.—Mrs. Faver is dangerously ill with pneumonia. Ross Murray is able to be out. The owners of the wood, saw and power had a meeting at the school house Saturday evening. Though we were not present matters were discussed and Parley Isham was made business manager. Edna Johnson has been having the chicken pox. Charles Gault has a severe cold as has also D. G. Smith. Rev. Dexter preached in the Murray school house Sabbath afternoon. James Linderman of Manchester, Ill., worshiped with the Sunday School in the Murray district on Sunday last. Some of our people are planning for a pleasant evening Saturday at the Demorest Contest in Manchester, Ill. The lady quartette will help the program and some of the judges are also from here.

Milton Notes.

Arthur Craig, who was injured here some days since while coupling cars, is having a serious time. Erysipelas has set in and his arm and face are very badly swollen. It is feared that blood poison will follow. Rev. Perry Millar of Marinette, made a business trip here last week. The donation visit on Tuesday evening for the benefit of Rev. W. H. Summers was a pleasant affair, but the attendance was not as large as it should have been.

ASHTON COMES UP AGAIN TOMORROW

ARGUMENTS ADJOURNED AT ATTORNEYS' REQUEST.

Just How the Case Would Stand on the Event of a New Trial Is Hard to Tell as Some of the Important Witnesses Are Gone—Ashton Confident.

Whether or not Matthew R. Ashton will get a new trial will not be decided until tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock. The arguments on that point were set for today but were adjourned at the request of the defendant's attorneys to Saturday and afterwards changed to Friday so the state could meet any affidavits before the end of the term. The term ends Saturday. In case Judge Bennett should not grant a new trial, Ashton will be sentenced to Waupun at once where he will remain until the case can be decided by the supreme court. If action is favorable to him he can perhaps get bail again. Just what the chances for witnesses would be are hard to tell. William H. Burt, the Pinkerton detective, went from here to California, the agency officers being much put out at the fact that he was kept here three weeks when he was to remain but three days. Spangler, it is said, might refuse to come back and testify again and nobody has seen Ferris since the first day of the trial. Sheriff Bear will go to Jefferson tomorrow night and bring Ashton down. The defendant thinks he will get a new trial.

The Resolution of the Jury.
When the Ashton jury brought in their verdict Juror William H. Tripp presented the following statement to the court which was read by the clerk:

"November term, circuit court, Rock county, January 27th, 1894.

"The jurors in the case of the state of Wisconsin against Matthew R. Ashton, defendant, take this opportunity to express their thanks to the Hon. Judge, clerk, stenographer and the attorneys engaged both in the prosecution and defense of the most important criminal action that this county has ever been called upon to witness. For their uniform consideration of our comforts during this protracted trial; also for the many favors that we have received from Sheriff Bear, but more particularly do we thank Under Sheriff L. M. Nelson for the uniform kindness that he has always shown us, for the readiness he has ever shown to do the many errands we have called upon him to perform, and also our able foreman, Wm. H. Tripp who has served as juror on four murder trials and as foreman on two, we extend thanks for the able and kind manner in which he has conducted himself as foreman.

"CHARLES A. RATHBUN, Clerk."

Judge Bennett stated that this was the last trial for this term of court. He thanked the jury for their patient, considerate manner. The case had been a long and important one, but the jury had submitted with cheerfulness and tried to do their full duty. That, of course was their duty to do. They had obeyed every request of the court and the court returned his thanks and discharged them.

"A Piece of String, Quick."

A ball box for the boy who makes stated inquiries for "a piece of string, quick," is described in this fashion: Take one of the light wooden boxes in which liquid blacking is sold, drop a handful of shot in the bottom and cover with melted beeswax. This is to hold the box steady when the cord is pulled out. Bore a small hole in the center of the lid. Take a strip of red morocco leather long enough to go round the box and lap an inch or two, make one end pointed and tack it round the box, leaving it loose enough so that a small scissors can be thrust into it. Paint the box with red enamel paint and ornament with irregular splashes of gold paint. Put in a ball of good stout cord—string a boy can depend on—and draw the end through the hole in the top of the box.

PETER ALLER WAS SURPRISED

Friends Descend Upon the Superintendent of the Poor Farm.

A pleasant surprise was given Peter Aller, the superintendent of the poor farm on Wednesday evening, January 24, by his friends of the Johnstown Congregational church. It was a coincidence that it occurred exactly seven years from the date of Mr. Aller's arrival from Evansville with his family to assume charge of the county asylum. Although it was a bitter cold night about thirty-five of his friends came and after friendly greetings and an hour's pleasant conversation presented Mr. Aller with a beautifully upholstered chair and then invited to partake of the refreshments kindly prepared by the magic of willing and loving hands. Mr. Aller has been the faithful support and stay since his residence in Johnstown of the Congregational church and especially of the Sunday school, having been superintendent for the past three years, and it was but a fitting expression that he should be thus remembered before leaving for the new home in Janesville, where he and his family will soon go.

Mother of Sixteen at Thirty-two.

A remarkable case of maternity was developed the other day when an application was made by Sarah Patty to act as guardian of the minor heirs of Maggie James, deceased. All the parties are colored, and interest attaches to the proceeding from the fact that the deceased left 10 children living and was the mother of six who are dead, dying herself at the age of 32, a few days ago, after giving birth to an infant now a week old.

E. R. Bell, a colored lawyer, presented the petition, and when questioned as to the truth of the statements in it, said they were correct. The deceased had been married at the age of 16 and had given birth to a child every year since, never having borne twins. Her first husband died, and she at once married again.—Memphis Appeal-Avalanche.

UTILITY PIMBALL.

Made of Bright Colored Bits of Velvet and Silk, It Becomes a Decorative Object. Don't Stuff It With Cotton, but Use Lamb's Wool.

One of the trifles for a bedroom which is pretty as well as useful is a pinball made according to the following directions from The Household:

To make it, cut of plush—any color you like—12 orange quarters like Fig. 2. Of

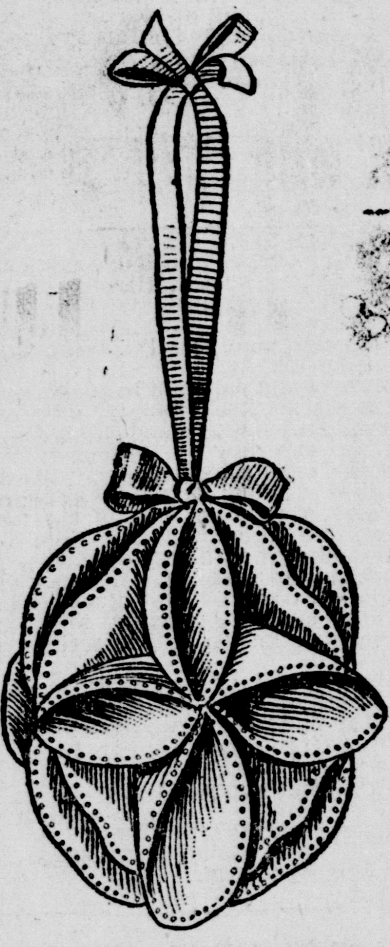

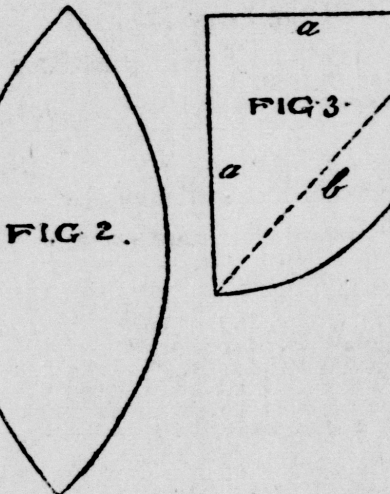

FIG. 1.—PINBALL COMPLETED.

Fig. 3 cut 24 pieces of surah silk. The line should be 2 1/2 inches long, while across from corner to corner along line b it should be 3 1/2 inches.

Overseam these silk pieces together in pairs, turning in the edges the width of a seam along the lines a a. Stuff the little pointed pocket thus formed with wool. Do not on any account stuff them with cotton if you design the ball for use. Lamb's wool, or old zephyr worsteds, or raveled knitting, or old nubias are all good; nothing else is.

When the 12 little pockets are stuffed, attach to the top of each one a plush orange quarter, oversewing it on. Then fasten all together, as is shown in the illustration of the finished ball.

Cover the junction of the plush with the silk with a little tinsel cord—it will take about 24 yards—and fasten to the top a little loop of half inch ribbon. The loop may be of any length or color desired, of course, and the plush and silk of the same color and shade or harmonizing color.

A Fine Bread Pudding.

Beat the yolks of 4 eggs until light and add the grated yellow rind of a lemon. Mix a quart of milk thoroughly with a pint of bread crumbs and add to the sugar and eggs. After mixing turn into a buttered pudding dish and bake in a moderate oven until the pudding is solid, but not watery. Cover with a meringue made from the whites of 2 eggs and 4 tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar. Brown delicately in the oven.

Care of the Hands.

Any woman can have soft, white hands who will take a little care of them. An excellent paste for whitening the hands and arms is prepared as follows: Four ounces of strained honey, 2 ounces yellow wax, 6 ounces of rosewater and an ounce of myrrh. Melt the wax, honey and rosewater together in a dish over boiling water. When melted and hot, add the myrrh; stir until smooth. Apply to the hands before retiring. The finger nail should be oval in shape, curved at the tip exactly as it is at the end where the "crescent" lies. To polish the nails, rub often with chamois skin.

Snow as a Cleanser.

A farmer's wife gives the assurance that carpets can be cleaned nicely by simply spreading them on the snow and throwing the snow on and sweeping it off several times. The carpet will look fresh and new, even if it was badly soiled, and will keep clean much longer than after washing.

It Is Well to Remember—

That black cotton hose should be dried and ironed on the wrong side to prevent fading.

That calicoes should be washed in clean water, dried in the shade and turned on the wrong side to dry.

That black and white calicoes are benefited by having a handful of salt added to the rinsing water.

That red tablecloths keep their color if a little borax is added to the rinse water and they are dried in the shade.

That a basket exposes the clothespins to dust, and the clothes suffer accordingly.

A SOCIAL CALL.

There goes the bell! A visitor, I guess. And I'm a fright and haven't time to dress. H'm! Mrs. Gossip from across the way. What put it in her head to call today? To see what she can see—that's all, no doubt. That woman's nothing but a gadabout. I hate her, with her supercilious airs—

That horrid girl is bringing her upstairs. 'Tis Mrs. Gossip, I declare! Why, this is quite a pleasure, I am sure. (A kiss.) So kind of you to call—'tis quite a treat. Let me remove your shawl. Pray, take a seat. We're all upset this morning, it is true. But we can always find a seat for you. Pray don't apologize—there is no need. I'm very glad you've called—I am indeed.

—Boston Courier.

THE TWO PEACHES.

Though the son and grandson of government employees, I had no more than fairly got started in the same career than I resigned my position on account of two peaches.

I was a regular chip of the old block, and my father thought nothing could equal a government career. So, after I had graduated, no one urged me to do anything but take a subordinate place in my father's department. I did not feel strongly drawn toward another vocation and submissively started on the uninteresting highway of bureaucracy.

I was a diligent fellow and well disciplined, for I had been taught from my cradle to respect superior officials and to defer to those in authority; so I was noticed by my chiefs and rapidly passed the first grades of clerkship. When I was 25, my director, who was fond of me, gave me a place in his office, and I became the envy of my comrades. They already spoke of me as a prospective superior clerk and predicted a bright future. It was then that I married. My wife was a beautiful girl, and, what is better, very good and affectionate, but she had no fortune. That was a grave fault in the eyes of the little world of clerks in which I lived.

They were very positive. They regarded marriage only as a business transaction, and they invariably took for a rule that "if the husband provides the breakfast, the wife must provide the dinner." But my wife and I between us had hardly enough to sup meagerly. Everybody said I had done a very silly thing, and more than one blunt colleague in my department declared briefly that I was a fool and had willfully put my foot in it. Nevertheless my wife was very sweet and lovely, and by living modestly and with great economy we succeeded in making both ends meet.

Though my lack of foresight was still condemned, the society people of the place designed to continue inviting us. My chief was rich and delighted in being conspicuous, priding himself on making a fine appearance in the social world. He frequently received, gave elegant dinners, and from time to time issued invitations for a dancing party to the families of his employees and to the prominent people of the town. My wife was not well, some months after our marriage, and though I would have much preferred to remain at home with her I was obliged to go alone to these entertainments, for my chief would not allow any one to decline his invitations—his subordinates must even amuse themselves according to his orders.

One night there was a grand ball at the directory, and of course, whether I would or no, I had to don my evening clothes and go.

While I put the finishing touches to my white cravat, my wife gave me numerous suggestions: "It will be perfectly lovely. Do not fail to see everything so as to tell me afterward. The names of the ladies who are there, the toilets, and the supper menu—for there is to be a supper. It seems that they have ordered a great many delicacies from Chevet—some rare fruits; I heard of peaches that cost 3 francs apiece—oh, what peaches they must be! Do you know, if you were good, you would bring me one."

I remonstrated. I showed her that the thing was impracticable, and how difficult it would be for a man in a dress suit to put such fruit as a peach in his pocket without the risk of being seen and pointed out. The more I objected the more bent upon her whim did she become.

"On the contrary, nothing could be easier. In the midst of the crowd coming and going to supper, no one would see you. Take one as for yourself, and then hide it adroitly. Don't shrug your shoulders. Perhaps it is only a bit of childishness, but I long for one; ever since I heard of those peaches I have had a wild desire to taste them. Promise to bring me one at least."

How could a man give a downright refusal to the woman he adored? I ended by murmuring a vague promise and then hastened away, but just as I turned the handle of the door she called me back. I saw her big blue eyes, bright with longing, turned upon me, and she cried once more, "Do you promise?"

The ball was very fine; flowers everywhere, elegant toilets and excellent music. The prefect, the president of the tribunal, the officers of the garrison, and all of the department clerks were there. Our chief had spared nothing to give brilliancy to this entertainment, of which his wife and daughter did the honors most graciously. At midnight, supper was served, and the dancers filed into the dining room in couples. I followed, trembling, and scarcely had I entered before I saw the famous peaches sent by Chevet occupying a conspicuous place in the center of the table.

They were indeed magnificent! There was a pyramid of them in a china basket, carefully arranged with grape leaves, which brought out the appetizing color of their velvety skins where deep red shaded into greenish white. From seeing them one could easily imagine the fragrance and delicate flavor of the luscious rosy pulp. My eyes caressed them from afar, and I thought of the joyous cries that would greet me on my return if I succeeded in carrying home a sample of this perfect fruit.

They were exciting general admiration, and the more I gazed at them the more did my desire take the shape of a fixed purpose. I determined to have one or two. But how? The waiters kept a watchful guard over this rare and costly delicacy, our host having reserved for himself the pleasure of offering his peaches to certain guests. From time to time, at a sign from my chief, the butler would daintily take one, cut it with a silver knife, and present the two halves on a Sevres plate to the designated person.

I watched this performance greedily, and with fear saw the pyramid fall in. However, the contents of the basket were not exhausted. Perhaps the order had been strictly executed; perhaps the peaches had been arranged with forethought. At any rate, when the banqueters, recalled by the orchestra's playing a prelude, hurried back to the dancing hall, there were still half a dozen beautiful peaches nestling among the green leaves.

I followed the crowd, but it was only a false sortie. I had left my hat in a corner—a tall hat, which had bothered me considerably during the entire evening. I went back with the pretense of getting it, and as I was, in a way, one of the household, the servants did not mistrust me. Besides, they were busy carrying out the dishes and glasses used by the guests, and at a certain moment I found myself alone near the sideboard.

There was not an instant to lose. After a furtive glance to the right and left, I approached the basket and made two of the peaches quickly roll into my hat, where I covered them with my handkerchief; then, very calm and dignified in appearance, though my heart was beating frightfully, I left the dining room, carefully pressing the opening of my hat to my breast, and holding it there by means of my right hand, which, thrust inside of my vest, gave me a very majestic, almost Napoleonic, bearing.

My scheme was to cross the ballroom cautiously, to steal away, and once outside to carry home victoriously the two peaches wrapped in my handkerchief.

It was not so easy as I had fancied. They were about to commence the cotillon. All around the large hall there was a double line of men and elderly ladies, hemming in the circle formed by the chairs of the dancers, while in the center there was a wide, empty space, where a few couples were waiting.

I timidly made my way through groups of people; I squeezed between chairs with the suppleness of a snake; I trembled each moment for fear that a rough jog of my elbow would change the position of my hat and the peaches fall. I could feel them rolling around inside, and I grew hot to my ears and the roots of my hair. At last, after much care and maneuvering, I reached the inner space just as a new figure was being organized. A lady is placed in the center and the gentlemen circle about her with their backs turned; she holds a hat and places it upon the head of the man with whom she wishes to waltz.

I had hardly taken two steps when the director's daughter, who was leading the cotillon with a young counselor of the prefecture, cried:

"A hat! We need a hat!"

At the same moment she caught sight of me with my stovepipe against my breast. I met her glance, and my blood froze.

"Ah!" she said to me, "you have come just in time, M. Herbelot. Quick, your hat."

Before I could even stammer out one word, she had taken my hat, so hastily that the peaches forthwith rolled upon the floor, carrying my handkerchief and two or three grape leaves with them.

You can imagine the tableau. The dancers laughed in their sleeves at my theft and discomfiture; my chief frowned, and grave men whispered and pointed their fingers at me, while I felt my knees grow weak. I longed to sink through the floor and disappear.

The young lady pressed her lips together to keep back her laughter, and while returning my hat said, in an ironical voice:

"Pick up your peaches, M. Herbelot."

Shouts of mirth then resounded from all parts of the room—even the servants held their sides. Pale, haggard and tottering, I fled, overwhelmed with my disgrace and so confused that I could hardly find the door. With a dead weight on my heart, I hurried away to tell my wife of my disaster.

The next day the story was all over town. When I entered my department, my comrades received me with, "Herbelot, pick up your peaches." I could not venture into the street without hearing mocking voices murmur behind me, "Peaches."

The place was unbearable, and in a week I handed in my resignation.

An uncle of my wife had a farm near my native village, and I begged him to take me for an assistant. He consented, and we moved to Chauteraine. I went to work resolutely, rising with the dawn and never pitying myself. It would seem that I was more fitted for agriculture than for pen pushing, for in a short time I became an enthusiastic farmer. The property did so well that our uncle, at his death, willed it to us.

I worship peaches, for to them I owe my happiness. Without them I should have remained a weak subordinate, trembling at the slightest frown from a prefect, and being but one of the already too numerous throng of clerks who find it difficult to make both ends meet.—San Francisco Argonaut.

White Fur Rugs.

One of the pretty conceits of the day is a boudoir carpet made entirely of white fur. Very large white fur rugs are also greatly in vogue and are not expensive, three good sized goatskins sewed together making a reasonably large rug. White fur rugs can be easily cleaned and should not be allowed to remain soiled, their beauty consisting in their freshness.—Decorator.

WILL HANG THEMSELVES.

The income tax will kill the democratic party in the next election. It can hardly be checked in the house for the main body of the democrats and all the republicans are supporting it. Although the great majority of the republicans in congress are opposed to an income tax they united with the dominant faction of the democracy in adding the tax to the Wilson bill. Their interest as partisans lies in making that measure as obnoxious to the people as possible, and in thus seriously handicapping the party responsible for it. The effort seems hardly necessary, however, for democrats seem perfectly willing to prepare noose and gallows and furnish a hangman for their own execution.

GIVE THE PEOPLE A CHANCE

If bonds are to be issued why shouldn't the common people get the benefit? John Sherman and other republicans in both branches of congress have proposed measures for the sale of short-time and low denomination bond which the poor people could get a hold of, and which would constitute a popular loan in the true sense, but the democrats refuse to furnish any such legislation, and thus the head of the treasury is compelled to call for bonds with a premium attachment which excludes them altogether from the people, and virtually, puts them in the hands of bankers and capitalists solely.

IT WILL PASS THE HOUSE.

No trouble about the Wilson bill. It has dug its author's grave, but the house will pass it none the less, income tax and all. There is no room for doubt on this point. The scheme of the faction of discontented democrats to send it back to the ways and means committee to be overhauled and modified will fail, as will also the republican endeavor to kill the bill. But in the senate the elements opposed to the measure may possibly be able to accomplish something.

Rock county wool growers will remember August 1 1894. On that date the free wool provision of the Wilson bill is designed to go into effect. The La Prairie farmer who shears his sheep backwards because he is ashamed to look them in the face since he voted the democratic ticket will swear more than ever.

It's just as well Secretary Carlisle doesn't make his bonds suitable for general investments. The working people haven't any savings they need to stow away just now; while the bankers of New York have a surplus of $109,000,000 and are in shape to gobble the whole issue.

What has a democratic administration cost the country? Look at the idle factories, the empty dinner pails, the busy soup houses and snow shovel brigades. Then remember that the national debt has been increased $50,000,000 in nine months.

No trouble to remember this congress. It will be known in history as the one that compelled a secretary of the treasury to issue bonds for the purpose of meeting a deficit mainly caused by its trifling with the public interests.

It isn't hard to see how Hoke Smith of Georgia, is amusing himself. Just 130 pensioners have been added to the rolls since July 1, 1893, while 700,000 claims are pending.

Secretary Carlisle says he means to issue bonds whenever there is a deficit. The indications are there will be a deficit about as long as democratic rule continues.

When the democratic party starts to reform the tariff again it should pre-pone the panic until after the passage of the bill.

FUNNYGRAPHS.

Singleman—Do you let your wife have the last word? Benedict—Do I let her? H'm! It's easy to tell that you know nothing of married life.

Handers—Doctor, I'm getting so near-sighted that I cannot recognize people on the street. What shall I do for it? The Doctor—Umph! Why not pay your debts?

First Girl—Freddie took a great deal of wine at dinner yesterday. Second Girl—I noticed it. First Girl—It went to his head. Second Girl—Dear me! what a lonely place for it to go.

Tom—Somebody ought to warn Mrs. Prettiface that that old fellow Smirks, who's paying attention to her, is a miserable flirt. Jim—Hem! Better warn Smirks. Mrs. Prettiface is a widow.

Mandy—Land sakes, Josiah, these city folks are awful plain spoken. Josiah—How do you know? Mandy—Didn't you notice the gentleman standing in the carriage we passed? Josiah—Yes. Mandy—Just as I got opposite he said right out loud, "A handsome lady."

Longhaired Visitor, timidly—I—er—suppose you like to have people write for your paper? Busy Editor, without looking up—Write for my paper? Yes, sir, yes, sir, providing they don't fail to enclose the subscription price. Just as soon they'd come for it though. What's going so soon? Sorry. Again.

Sunday School Teacher, explaining the subtle influence of Satan—Why is it that a boy will pass by the fruit of his own yard and then take the same sort of fruit, not a bit better, from a neighbor's tree? Boy—'Cause, ef yeh take y'r own fruit y'r father will lick yeh, but if yeh take the neighbor's fruit the neighbor doesn't lick yeh, 'cause your father will get mad and lick him.

It was in the old days when the Houlton stage line claimed to be a medium of "rapid transit." The coach was light loaded and was hauled up at the door of an up-river hotel, ready to start, when an Indian, well known to the driver, came walking by, going the same way. "Hallo, Joe!" sang the driver. "Come, get aboard and have a ride." "No," answered Joe, scarcely turning his head as he strode along, "can't stop to ride Me in a hurry."

CLARK WON'T STAND THE ROSTER LOAD.

OTHERS TRYING TO MAKE HIM CARRY IT.

Attorney John Winans, the Ex-Secretary's Representative, Speaks Out in Meeting When the Examination Is Called Up—Postponement Until February 12.

Colonel Clark objects to having the roster contract unloaded on his shoulders. There was a suggestive development in Judge Sale's court today.

Colonel Clark was called into court as adverse witness by the attorneys for the plaintiffs.

Attorney General R. M. Bashford, Assistant Attorney General Clancy and Colonel Clark were the only defendants on hand. They sat in Judge Sale's court at 10 o'clock with Attorneys R. H. Chynoweth, John Winans, G. G. Sutherland and T. S. Nolan for the defense and John M. Olin and M. Jeffris for the plaintiffs. Mr. Olin has had to fight the ten attorneys on the other side single-handed up to this time, but Mr. Jeffris will now assist him.

The examination did not begin at 10 o'clock as had been expected. Attorney Winans, who represents Colonel Clark, said he could not be present tomorrow on account of the Ashton case arguments. The Clark examination would last two days and the defendant's attorneys had to be present.

"To postpone this examination would work great hardships to the plaintiffs, your honor," Olin urged. "We must go to trial February 26 and our evidence cannot be put in shape if there are many delays. The defendants have put us in this position and should not object to reasonable demands. Even if Mr. Winans cannot be present to-morrow there are a lot of other attorneys for the defense who can be present."

Willing to Unload on Clark. Mr. Winans objected strenuously to the examination being pressed at this time. "True there are nine or ten other attorneys," he said, "but each attorney represents a different defendant."

"I think I am not saying too much," he remarked, "if I suggest that each of the defendants is concerned about himself alone. If they could all climb out from under the load of hay and let it drop on Colonel Clark alone, I imagine they would be very well satisfied."

Judge Sale continued the examination to Monday February 12.

Robe Dow, the Stoughton banker testified in Madison yesterday that he went to Colonel Clark when money began to get scarce early in June and demanded that what he had paid on the roster contract be returned or state money advanced to take its place.

"Now, keep quiet," he was urged. "Your money can't be repaid just yet but you can have some state deposits."

A few days after that a big slice of state money was placed in the Stoughton bank.

Dow declared that the reason he and his brother held off at first from becoming plaintiffs in the case was that the money market was still close and they feared the state board of deposits would call on them for cash. They waited until their bank could be put in good shape before they added their names to the complaint.

The Jobbers Wanted $70,000.

Besides telling how state funds were used by the capitol ring to reward friends and punish enemies Dow gave the interesting information that the original scheme contemplated the borrowing of the roster jobbers of $70,000 on the famous secret contract, of which $20,000 was to go to Col. Clark for the contract, $25,000 for doing the work under the contract, and the balance to running the Madison Times under its new management. It also appeared from the testimony of the same witness that Atty. Gen. O'Connor took more interest in the transactions and in Mr. McFalls satisfaction of the validity of the contract than would be wholly comprehended in his assurance to a newspaper man, at about that time, that he had only examined the contract to make sure that the interests of the state were properly protected.

Robe Dow's Testimony

Robe Dow testified that he was first informed of the roster contract in March last by his brother George, who told him McFall had been offered the contract by Colonel Clark, to whom it had been awarded. The contract was to finally include 45,000 sets. Consultation followed. An estimate of the cost made by Mr. Clark was 50 cents per volume or $25,000 for 25,000 sets, which were to be ordered first, and the contract price was to be $1.90 per volume. McFall wanted to borrow money to carry out the contract, and run the Times, and the Dows, after securing the legal advice of their attorneys, Bashford & O'Connor, that the contract was all right, were ready to loan him the amount he wanted, which was $70,000 or $75,000. This was to pay, besides the $25,000 the work would cost, $20,000 to Colonel Clark for the contract, the balance to go toward paying the losses of running the Times. An assignment of the contract was to be taken as security.

O'Connor Declared It Safe.

McFall told him O'Connor would give an opinion on the validity of the contract, and the Dows and McFall went to the capitol to see him. They met him in the corridor talking to R. B. Ogilvie. Mr. O'Connor there stated to McFall, "Oh, Mac, I've looked into that matter, and it is perfectly safe to put your money into it and go ahead."

Mr. Dow's testimony as to other particulars of the deal was mainly corroborative of what has already been printed.

Clancy Cross-Examines Dow. Assistant Attorney General Clancy undertook to cross-examine Robe Dow with the evident purpose of shaking his evidence as to what Dow has charged Clancy with saying in connection with the details of the roster contract and the opinions of Senator Bashford and Attorney General O'Connor regarding the validity of the document.

He made a sorry failure of the effort. Mr. Dow not only reiterated but emphasized and particularized the language which he had formerly attributed to Mr. Clancy.

Retired From Business.

With the sale of the paper, which was merged with the Weekly Republican some months ago, Mr. Veeder's active work ceased, although he still retained, at the time of his death, an interest in the Tobacco Leaf.

GARRETT VEEDER WAS CALLED HOME.

VETERAN EDITOR DIED THIS MORNING.

Was the Founder of The Daily Recorder and the Oldest Newspaper Man in Southern Wisconsin—Funeral to be Held From His Home Sunday Afternoon.

Janesville's pioneer editor, Garrett Veeder, finished his life's work this morning and peacefully sank into that sleep that knows no awakening on this earth. So quietly did death come that its advent was hardly realized; one touch and all was over; while his life went out a smile came to his lips.

Mr. Veeder was the oldest publisher and editor in Rock county and one of the oldest in the state. He was born at Schenectady N. Y. July 10, 1821, and was the oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Veeder. The family traced their ancestry back to within twenty years of the landing of the pilgrims at Plymouth rock. Mr. Veeder's father was of Dutch and English descent and was born and raised in Schenectady. When Garrett was a lad the family emigrated to Ogdensburg, N. Y., traveling in a wagon. At that city and at the age of thirteen years he began learning the printers trade from Judge A. B. James and for two years he worked with the composing stick and rule. Then he gave up the art preservative in order to get an education. The Ogdensburg Academy was the school he attended and at eighteen he had secured a teachers certificate. The next four years found him teaching school and in 1843 he returned to the printing office; the type having an attraction for him at all times.

Married and Moved On.

It was in Ogdensburg, October 1, 1850, that Mr. Veeder married Miss Elizabeth Burke, who died on February 17, 1881. Six children were born to them but all have answered the last summons. They were Mrs. Elizabeth Lake, who died in 1883; Charles G. Veeder, who died in 1880; John, who died in 1881; William, whose demise came when six years old and two children who were called in their infancy.

Mr. Veeder dates his residence in Janesville from 1856 when he came here and went into the shoe business with J. C. Echlin. For three years afterward he ran a general store at Hanover. Later he returned to Janesville and the love for his profession being still strong within him, he bought an interest in the job office of Ellis Doty.

From 1863 until 1871 the partnership existed, and then Mr. Veeder with S. St. John started the Rock County Recorder, a weekly paper. Since then Mr. Veeder has not been out of the harness, except for a short rest occasionally. In December, 1881, he formed a partnership with W. H. Leonard and T. S. Nolan, and incorporated under the title of the Recorder Printing Company. Two years later he sold his interest and went into business with W. H. Tinsley in the Times job office in the Lapping block. Here the Janesville Sunday Signal was founded, and in 1888 the plant was removed to the Jeffris block under the Merchants' and Mechanics' bank.

Retired From Business.

With the sale of the paper, which was merged with the Weekly Republican some months ago, Mr. Veeder's active work ceased, although he still retained, at the time of his death, an interest in the Tobacco Leaf.

Mr. Veeder was married in 1884 to Mrs. Emma Pease Otis, and to them one son, Garrett Jr., was born. Besides the wife and son, three step children survive, they being Newton Murdoch, Willie Clark, and Sarah Lillian Otis. Two brothers, Dr. Fred Veeder, of Utica, N. Y., and Edwin Veeder, of San Francisco; and two sisters, Mrs. Emma Horton and Mrs. Harriet Leader of Rochester have been allowed a longer space of life than Mr. Veeder.

All Classes Were His Friends

There were few people in Rock county, yes, even in Wisconsin, who did not know Garrett Veeder either personally or by reputation. He was one of the oldest members of the state press association and had wielded the pen longer than any other writer in the southern portion of the state. In his home city his acquaintance was wide. Genial and wholesome, kind hearted and benevolent, he made many friends whose eyes will be moist when they hear of his death.

Mr. Veeder affiliated with the Congregational church and was a member of Wisconsin Lodge No. 14, I. O. O. F.

The funeral will be held from the residence, 201 Fourth avenue at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

W. H. Stark. Hon. W. H. Stark died this morning at his home in Tiffany, aged about eighty-six years.

QUERY ON THE BOWE JUDGMENT

Method of Collection Discussed by Attorneys—Attorney Olin's Speech.

The judgment of $5,000 against Rev. J. F. Bowe for slander has raised a new point. Can the judgment be collected if a contest is made? Father Bowe is still in charge of the Edgerton church and it may be that the judgment is collectible in the ordinary way, he having sufficient property to pay it. There is no intimation however, that there will be a contest.

Attorney J. M. Olin, who assisted in the prosecution, scored Rev. Bowe so severely in his closing arguments that the latter left the court room and did not return until the case was closed.

ALL MUST BE VACCINATED.

Parochial Schools Not Exempt from the State Board's Order.

The state board of health yesterday formally issued the order adopted at the Madison meeting last week that no children should be allowed to attend either a public, private or parochial schools unless they presented to the teacher of the school a certificate stating that they had been vaccinated. While it is probable that the majority of parents will at once see that their children comply with the order, there will doubtless be a few who will contest the order, and the constitutionality of the law requiring school children to be vaccinated will probably be contested in the courts.

BODY TURNED BLUE BEFORE HE DIED.

FEARFUL SUFFERINGS OF THE SMALL POX PATIENT.

Alex. Stamper, the Faithful Colored Nurse Compelled to Tramp in the Snow Outside the House all Night—City's Pest House Was in a Very Bad Shape.

John Black, the small pox patient, died at the city pest house at 10 o'clock last night. Just before death his neck, face and shoulders turned a dark blue, and dark, thick blood poured from his mouth and nose. A blood vessel in his head broke, and an odor arose that drove Alex Stamper, the colored nurse, to the open air. Stamper tramped all night in the snow, visiting the house occasionally, but he could not stand the smell.

Black's body was so covered with pock marks that a pin point could not be touched to solid flesh. The disease was in its most virulent form, "black small-pox."

Sick Man in a Cold Room.

When Black was taken to the pest house, the men who cared for him found the house empty. There was neither bed nor cot to put him on and the first night he spent on the straw that was taken from the jail with him and piled in one corner of the room. The bedding that he had wrapped around him was all he had that bitter cold night.

Black will be buried tonight. None of his friends or relatives can be found although Sheriff Bear has been telegraphing to ascertain. Black was but recently discharged from the hospital at Chippewa Falls, where he nearly died of typhoid fever.

The Complexion of a Chinese.
 Is not yellower than that of an unfortunate individual whose liver complaint has assumed the chronic form. The eyeballs of the sufferer assume a saffron hue, there is dull pain in the region of the organ affected, the tongue is coated, each hour, sick headaches usually but not always occur, and there is sometimes dizziness arising from a sitting posture. Constipation and dyspepsia are also attendants of this very common ailment, always in its aggravated form, liable to breed abscesses of the liver, which are very dangerous. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters wholly eradicates it as well as the troubles connected with it and which it originates. In chills and fever, a complaint which always yields to the Bitters, the liver is seriously involved. This fine alternate tonic removes costiveness and indigestion, rheumatic, nervous and kidney trouble and debility.

WHEELLOCK'S CROCKERY HOUSE

SOUTH MAIN STREET.

Discovery of a Bomb in a Tree That Nearly Wrecked a Mill.

Mr. L. J. Navra, secretary of the W. J. Athens lumber company at Strader, La., arrived in New Orleans lately, and in conversation with a Pickayune reporter related a singular incident that happened at the saw-mill one day lately.

While sawing through a log twenty feet in length and thirty inches in diameter, the men noticed sparks flying from the log. These increased so rapidly that the men determined to arrest the action of the machinery and investigate the phenomenon.

They found that the saw had come in contact with a thick piece of iron, and so great had been the resistance or friction that electricity was produced, yielding the abundance of sparks. They immediately set about removing the iron, when to their astonishment they found it to be a bombshell that had become imbedded in the log; their surprise was still greater when, upon examining the shell, they found it to be loaded. They removed the powder by picking it out with a pen-knife slowly and carefully, for the workmen were sensible of the narrow escape from a serious accident had the machinery come in contact with the cap of the shell, which was intact.

The curious incident was witnessed by Mr. W. J. Athens, president of the mills; Mr. F. W. Bands, superintendent, and Mr. Navra. The most peculiar circumstance attending the discovery was that the shell was found in the center of the log, and the closest investigation failed to explain by what possible manner it could have entered the log, as they could find no trace of an aperture. The log was of cypress, and had been taken with many others from the bayou, whither they had been rafted to the mill for the purpose of being sawed. It was covered with the bark peculiar to the cypress, and the shell was so deeply imbedded in the center of the lower end, and the wood had grown so completely about it that no one could have ever dreamed that it harbored such a dangerous missile as a loaded shell.

The town of Strader is situated about forty miles from New Orleans, on the Illinois Central railroad, and the news flew fast over the community and attracted many visitors to the mills. There were many conjectures as to how the shell found a home in the log, but the most plausible theory advanced was that the press tree in which it lodged had near some Southern battle ground during the late civil war, and in one of the many fierce engagements of that sad era it was thrown by one of the contending armies, and, missing its aim, lodged in the log.

Nearly thirty years have passed away since then, and naturally the log, increasing in dimensions, gradually closed entirely over the aperture caused by the entrance of the ball, while the bark grew in thickness from year to year till not a tree remained to tell the story of carnage. And now, after being in the heart of the old cypress so many years, it has come to light in the busy saw-mill—a type of the new and progressive South—and told again the war story of the old South, a story that resembles the history of the shell in this, that as it lay buried in the heart of the ancient cypress, so, too, that era lies forever buried in the hearts of the people.

None of the gentlemen could account, however, Mr. Navra said, for the shell being loaded, and considered it one of those strange phenomena that have attended the history of some of the old forts, notably the ancient Ft. McComb, in which a gentleman recently lost his life by the explosion of an old bomb that every one thought had laid there so long that it might be touched with impunity. In the case of the shell at Strader, however, Mr. Navra says that it was, indeed, a fortunate dispensation that the saw first struck it on the side about one inch from the outer edge, without coming in contact with the cap, as there would undoubtedly have been several of the workmen injured and perhaps a loss of life. He intends sending the shell to the city as a curiosity.

A. Golden, druggist, Birmingham, Ala., writes: "Please publish some of the testimonials I have sent you for Japanese Pile Cure." Sold at Smith's pharmacy.

In Full Artillery Trappings.

"NOW, JIM, LET GO."

All the pomp of army life in 1866 is pictured in Captain King's story, "Waring's Peril." First chapter in The Gazette Saturday.

Juror Hart Still Sick.

ROCKFORD, ILL., Feb. 1.—Juror Albert E. Hart is still confined to his bed and the court was therefore unable to proceed with the Hart murder trial. A Natural Sequence.

The outgrowth of intelligent and persistent effort ought to be success. We are not the creatures of fancy—the sport and prey of every stormy wind that blows. Good buying, close selling, energetic advertising, and polite and honest treatment, will make and hold trade. That's why we have earned and maintain our present position.

Advertising is not without its alloy, any more than gold or silver ore. Pass a statement through the sieve of public opinion—you'll find that nine-tenths of the dress has been filtered out and only the truth has left a permanent impression on the minds of the people. Every store, like an individual, has its friends and enemies. We value our store friends highly, but don't gauge our facilities solely by what they say. Neither should you judge us by what others who are interested in a different direction say. Come yourself. No other eyes will serve you as faithfully as your own, and we are perfectly willing to rest our case on what your judgment and good sense see and recommend here.

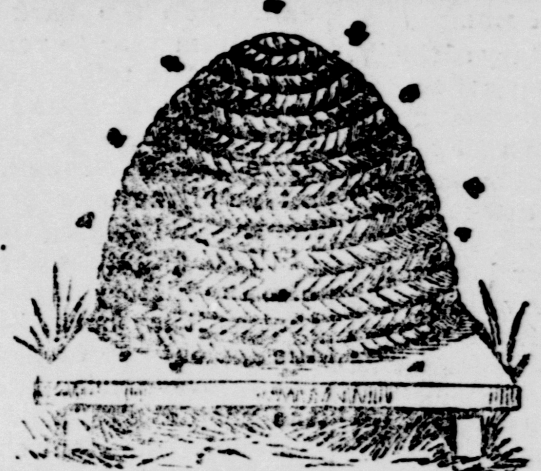

A wise woman will not be taken in by one or two small articles being of fered cheap—as a bait—but will look at the whole bill from start to finish to see if she is getting her money's worth. This is where this house catches the customer every time.

The Following is a recapitulation of all goods advertised this month of January, and can be bought at the same prices as long as they last:
